Dear Carol,

Thank you for getting back to me.
I found your e-mail most interesting and informative.
You missed out one point. Having referred to the immediate issue with J15 I said:

This land abuts both the motorway slip road and the roundabout. The latter, I presume, is the responsibility of the local authority.

This situation must apply at almost all motorway junctions.

In those cases where there is no obvious dividing line how is responsibility for cleaning the land split between the Highways Agency and the relevant local authority?

So, how is the responsibility split?

I look forward to hearing from you.
